NEWSLETTER

Happy Thanksgiving

Gratitude unlocks the fullness of life. It turns what we have into enough, and more. It turns denial into acceptance, chaos to order, confusion to clarity. It can turn a meal into a feast, a house into a home, a stranger into a friend.

FROM THE DESK OF THE PRESIDENT

Greetings!

If you missed it last year, I hope you were able to attend our 2nd Annual Oktoberfest with more activities and more entertainment. If not, mark your calendar for next year. It will be Saturday, October 7th. We are already thinking of new activities, games and ways to improve the event.

We will have a short ceremony featuring Home School 5th grade singing the National Anthem, guest speakers, a rifle salute and Taps by Tom Day. Refreshments will follow upstairs in the Art Treckler Room.

Our Police Dept. has a Facebook page. Check it out. <https://www.facebook.com/forestviewpd>

Please take the time to read our Newsletter. There is a new ordinance in effect you should be aware of if you plan on selling your home.

Also, even if you have signed up for Code Red in the past, please take the time to fill out a new sign-up sheet. We had many residents informing us that they are not receiving alerts. You can receive a message via email, text message, phone call/voice mail on your phone or all 3. So, if you have not been getting alerts from the Village of Forest View, you need to fill out form again.

Some quotes to ponder:

"Give thanks for a little, and you will find a lot."

Hausa Proverb - The Hausa people make up the largest ethnic group in the African continent. The Hausa are mainly in western Africa and they are found in Nigeria and Niger, where they number about 70 million people.

"Give thanks not just on Thanksgiving Day, but every day of your life. Appreciate and never take for granted all that you have."

Catherine Pulsifer – (6/16/1946 – 3/2/2013) -Was involved reaching out to physically challenged kids to improve their lives. The last few years she fought diabetes and pulmonary degeneration.

No matter how grim things appear, there is always something to be grateful for. With that, I wish you all a Thankful Thanksgiving.

Warm Regards,
Village President, Nancy L. Miller

Can Dogs Sense Pregnancy?

You've read the stories or heard them from your friends, and maybe you've even experienced it yourself: a dog that senses its owner is pregnant even before she knows herself.

But is it really possible that dogs can sense you're expecting? Here's what the research can — and can't — tell us about your dog's perception of your pregnancy.

Can dogs sense pregnancy in humans?

Anecdotally, at least, dogs have been known to start following around a newly pregnant owner or suddenly becoming overprotective. Although there is no study (yet) showing that dogs can sense pregnancy in humans, it's really not that much of a stretch to assume that they might be able to sense when an owner has a baby on board.

If you do notice changes in your dog's behavior during pregnancy, it may be linked to shifts in your hormones along with changes in your behavior — both of which research shows dogs can sense.

Changes in your pregnancy hormones

Receptors in a dog's nose can pick up on hormones. And research suggests that the hormones emitted by your body can lead to a change in body odor that's detectable even by other humans. Therefore, it stands to reason dogs might also pick up on the hormonal changes that occur during pregnancy — in essence, smell that you're pregnant.

During pregnancy, your body is filled with a new cocktail of hormones. The human chorionic gonadotropin (hCG) levels in your blood, for one, skyrocket from somewhere around 50 mIU/L max in week 3 of pregnancy to up to 426 mIU/L by week 4 and 288,000 in the last weeks of the first trimester. Estrogen, progesterone and prolactin levels also all rise during pregnancy.

Meanwhile, dogs' sense of smell is notoriously sensitive: Scientists say they can smell as much as 100,000 times better than we humans can, allowing them to pick up on a wide range of chemical compounds.

And, like us, dogs have not one but two senses of smell. One picks up on important survival stuff, such as food odors. The other (known as Jacobson's organ or vomeronasal organ) picks up on what's known as pheromones. These chemical compounds transmit signals to other dogs, helping them to detect, for example, a dog's readiness to mate and even potentially another dog's health.

Using that incredible sense of smell, dogs have been shown to sniff out health conditions in people with incredible accuracy. Research suggests that dogs can sense cancer, including prostate, colorectal, ovarian and lung cancers, as well as infectious diseases including COVID-19 and malaria— sometimes by merely sniffing a person's breath — with nearly 100 percent accuracy.

Dogs have even been shown to detect low or high blood sugar levels in people with diabetes or body odors that occur before a seizure, and they can be trained to alert owners by whining or licking their hands.

Given these abilities, detecting changes in a person's pregnancy hormones doesn't seem too far-fetched.

Changes in your behavior

Dogs are very attentive and socially responsive, especially with their owners. They notice slight changes in an owner's behavior, which is why some are trained to be registered emotional support companions for people with PTSD, anxiety, depression and other mental health disorders.

During pregnancy, your behavior or routine may change in ways that your dog notices. For example, your dog might notice that you're more tired than usual, that you have major nausea, that you're in nesting mode — or even simply that your baby bump is growing.

Will your dog's behavior change during your pregnancy?

Even if your dog may be able to sense that you're pregnant, it doesn't necessarily mean his behavior will change. While some dogs might become more protective & clingy, yours might seem more fearful around you or simply indifferent.

Can dogs sense if you're going into labor?

Major hormonal changes to levels of oxytocin, endorphins, prolactin and adrenaline all play an important role in triggering and sustaining labor and delivery — from instigating contractions that dilate and efface the cervix to preparing the body to breastfeed. Given that dogs can smell hormones, they may also be able to sense hormonal shifts that occur as you're going into labor.

There's no hard science that proves your dog knows you're pregnant or about to go into labor. But if it seems like your dog is acting unusual during your pregnancy, you could be right in assuming that he is really is sensitive to the changes going on in your body. Either way, it's always a good idea to start preparing your dog to welcome a new baby even before your little one's arrival.

OKTOBERFEST

HOME SCHOOL TRICK OR TRUNK

EVERY CHILD IS AN ARTIST

I got this recipe from a Betty Crocker cookbook back in the 70's (when I was just a kid and learning how to cook) so it's very easy. I've been making this ever since. It involves layering thinly sliced potatoes with heavy cream and grated cheese in a baking dish, and then baking until the cream thickens and blankets the potatoes in a rich, creamy sauce.

Only 4 ingredients plus salt and pepper.

Potatoes Au Gratin

The best potatoes to use for au gratin potatoes are russets; they have the most starch and make the creamiest sauce.

You may be tempted to cut calories by using half & half or milk in place of the cream. Don't! This is one of those recipes that really requires heavy cream in order to thicken up.

You will need a 2qt baking dish (corning ware) 1 stick of butter, 10 oz tub of grated parmesan, (I use Frigo brand from WalMart)

1-32 oz carton of heavy whipping cream and about 10 small to medium size russet potatoes.

Begin by peeling potatoes and then slice thin and as uniformly as possible.

Heavily butter a 2-quart baking dish. (I don't use spray, butter adds flavor) Arrange some of the potato slices, edges overlapping, in a single layer on the bottom of the dish.

Sprinkle with salt and pepper

Sprinkle a quarter of the cheese over the potatoes.

Pour a quarter of the cream over top. (1 cup)

Repeat with the remaining potatoes, salt & pepper, cheese, and cream, forming four layers. Pour any leftover cream over top. Dot with sliced butter, about 5 – 1/8" slices.

Place in the oven @ 385 and bake, uncovered, for 60 minutes, or until the potatoes are tender when pierced with a fork and golden brown on top. The top layer of the potatoes should be golden by the time the dish is done baking. I strongly suggest putting baking dish on a cookie sheet as it will probably bubble over. 10 minutes B-4 done, if desired, you can sprinkle with paprika or fresh thyme leaves, or parsley or basil and serve. Make it to your taste. I just use dried parsley and spoon the sauce over it a bit. I've never tried this with Cheddar cheese but it's on my "to do" list.

This is a very rich and filling dish so you don't need a lot of other sides. You'll be too full!

Happy to report that the Village received the Edward Byrne Memorial Justice Assistance Grant from Cook County that was applied for in December. A special thanks to Sargent Perez and Chief Jones who assisted in applying for this grant.

June 21, 2022

Officer Salomon Guzman was sworn in as a Full time Police Officer. Fellow officers, friends and family were present at the meeting to congratulate Officer Guzman.

Village Administrator Dropka pointed out that when you call the non-emergency police number after hours, you will be prompted with an option to press number one (#1) for non-emergency police service, and you will be directly connected with the dispatch center. You will no longer need to hang up and dial a new number.

July 26, 2022

Village Administrator Dropka discussed quotes from Current Technologies for six new computers and three monitors. He is requesting to purchase one (1) computer for Police task force officers to take out on calls, two (2) new computers for the two new squads, two (2) desktops and monitors for the squad room and processing room and one (1) computer and monitor for the Village Clerk/Treasurer at a cost of $ 17,118.21
